LandAjob is actively reaching out to hiring managers who value diversity and inclusion to hire qualified individuals.

Employers can leverage LandAjob by sharing employers open job requisitions. In turn, LandAjob can convey the open position via website, email, and social media, to over 10,000 individuals within the LandAjob database.

Simply by posting positions through LandAjob, employers can help meet Federal hiring requirements through the Office of Federal Contract Compliance.”

Michael Sanders, LandAjob’s Director of Marketing stated, “We have entry to executive level candidates looking for work. A life-changing event impacted their career, but they are back and eager to showcase their knowledge, skills, and abilities.”

If a qualified candidate is hired, the employee may receive up to $13,000 in job-expense reimbursements ranging from daycare, transportation, or a work laptop. “It’s a win-win. The employer fills a position and can defer expenses, that would otherwise cause a hardship, through reimbursements LandAjob offers,” explained John Bertram, Director of Operations for LandAjob.

Bertram stated, “Simply by posting positions through LandAjob, employers can help meet Federal hiring requirements through the Office of Federal Contract Compliance (OFCCP). Additionally, if they do hire someone with a disability, their organization can earn rebates through the Work Opportunity Tax Credit (WOTC) program.”

If a current employee is on disability, they may also qualify for up to $13,000 in job-expense reimbursements. Current and prospective employees can visit <http://laj.work/apply> for more details on how to earn up to $13,000K.

Those interested in posting open requisitions with LandAjob to help individuals with disabilities visit <http://laj.work/freejobposting> for a free job posting.
