CHARLESTON, SC, USA, October 10, 2019 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Charleston, South Carolina has been named the most popular city in the U.S. by Condé Nast Traveler for the ninth year in a row as well as a top city in the world outside of the United Kingdom.

Charleston is one of only 3 cities in the country be voted among the top world destinations by the magazine publication. These results will be celebrated in the November issue.

Melinda Stevens, Editor in Chief of Condé Nast Traveler, shared her thoughts on this charming Southern hub noting that it is "Well-made, thoughtful, sophisticated not without a certain humor. It is a city for wandering alone, for getting lost, its neighborhoods revealing themselves like stage screens in the theater."

The Board Chair of Explore Charleston, Michael Tall, expressed the importance of these accolades to highlight "Charleston's charm shines brightly through its people, rich history, renowned cuisine, world-class accommodations, pristine island communities, and thriving cultural arts and shopping scenes."
