Shopping and making transactions online are fast becoming regular practices for people. People shop online sitting at home more than just visiting stores or shops. Moreover, even in stores people prefer paying online or through card instead of manually by cash. Records of all these payments and transactions, orders and deliveries are needed to be kept accurately. Some of the small sectors or cottage enterprises like boutique work upon their own logistics. However, sectors involving commerce in global standards, separate work base is required to maintain the logistics. These work departments are called E-commerce Logistics.

Urbanization is expected to push several industries by creating a huge user base for the E-commerce Logistics market. The demand is further getting traction as e-commerce is rapidly developing a base for itself by bringing in exotic products or unique ones that would cater to niche clients. It is also expected to make good grounds due to technological advancements. Various types of transports are getting picked up to efficiently distribute products. Smart machines are also getting developed to get real-time information about the product, which can ensure better growth prospect.

However, the market for e-commerce logistics may find some hindrances in the economic slump as several developing countries would feel the heat of it. In the African region, geopolitical crisis, economic plummet, difficult terrain, and others can significantly hold back the expected market growth.

Regional Market

North America and Europe have the best security facility and more number of people gradually taking support of internet to build their economic stature. This is proving beneficial for the e-commerce logistics market. The US, the UK, Canada, Italy, France, and Russia are way ahead than other countries of the region. This is due to their economic progress and better market association.

The APAC region and the Middle East and Africa are also bolstering local E-commerce Logistics markets by catering the demands of the people. Moreover, besides, developing the existing sectors, there are many smaller E-commerce Logistics sectors emerging in countries like India, Japan, China, Indonesia and Thailand.

Industry News

In September 2019, Shipper, a startup from Indonesia, announced their intention of improving the e-commerce logistics segment in the country. Indonesia is one of the fastest growing countries in the e-commerce section but it lacks e-commerce logistics structure. Shipper wants to explore this opportunity and create a wider base for itself.
