New Study Reports "4K Set Top Box (STB) 2019 Global Market Opportunities, Challenges, Strategies and Forecasts 2028".

Introduction / Market Overview:

The Common Use Of High End Digital Television Sets Will Create A Demand For STBs From The Global 4K Set Top Box (STB) Market

One of the latest developments in the entertainment industry is the adaptation to 4K technology. 4K resolution is the display of about 4000 pixels which will produce crystal clear, unbelievable videos. Different organizations have standardized this 4000 pixel resolution. A 4K set top box (STB) is a device that is usually connected to an output source like a television set. This connects to the cable, satellite or over the air systems to display 4K video content.

The dramatic increase in the number of digital TVs sold in the last decade is the main reason pointed for the growth of the global 4K set top box (STB) market. A study mentions that by 2020, more than half of the residential households of the United States of America will have TV sets that can play 4K videos. The development of technology in the entertainment sector will be a huge boost to this industry. The need for high end technology devices to play 4K videos is, however, a restraint to the market.

This report talks in detail about the global 4K set top box (STB) industry. It mentions the global market size including the sales and the revenue generated for the years between 2019 and 2024. The report mentions the expected CAGR levels too. Historical data is obtained for the years 2014-2018 and this, along with other numerous primary and secondary studies form the base for the forecasting done by the report.
