Market Overview
The global competency-based platform is a platform that provides a holistic view of the students in learning concrete skills rather than abstract learning. The platform also provides a landscape of student learning with the student performance indicators that include narratives, projects, portfolios, and learning goals. It supports the competency-based learning approach. The learners work on one competency at a time, which is a small portion of the overall larger learning goal. A structure is prepared where the students are evaluated on the individual competency and can only move further after mastering the current skill being learned.

After achieving the set goal, higher or more complex competencies are learned to master degree. An advantage of the competency-based platform is if the learner has mastery over a particular topic, an entire learning module can be skipped to save time. This can be determined through prior formative testing or learning assessment. The past was about teaching, the present is now more focused on self- learning and assessing platforms so that individuals can develop a reliable compass and navigate the way to learn the required skills.
