

WSF Announces Dates for 2020 Athlete Performance Clinics

Western Sports Foundation (WSF) will host four Athlete Performance Clinics in 2020. The clinics are open to all western sports athletes (18 or older)

PUEBLO, CO, USA, October 18, 2019 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Western Sports Foundation \(WSF\), the first program to provide a full range of health and wellness resources for all athletes in western sports, will host four Athlete Performance Clinics in 2020 in Pueblo, Colorado.

The 2020 dates are as follows:

February 10-12, 2020
May 18-20, 2020
July 27-29, 2020
November 16-18, 2020

Any western sports athlete (18 or older) is invited to register for three days of educational sessions, workouts, discussion roundtables, interactions and use of the newest training and physical recovery facilities available in the Professional Bull

Riders' new PBR Sport Performance Center. The PBR Sport Performance Center is the world's only high-performance training and recovery center designed for western sports athletes.

National experts and professionals in neurological services, brain trauma education, sports psychology, life skills and mental toughness, counseling, financial planning and physical training will be on hand to assist the athletes in preparing for both current competitions while also planning for their future beyond the sport.

“

Barrel racers, bull riders, ropers, and a other western sports athlete should consider attending one of the clinics in 2020. You won't regret the experience you will have with other athletes.”

Mark Dobosz, WSF Executive Director

“Barrel racers, bull riders, ropers, bareback riders and any other western sports athlete should seriously consider attending one of the four clinics in 2020. You won't regret the experience or the camaraderie you will develop with other athletes.” commented Mark Dobosz, WSF Executive Director.
