Global Cargo logistics brokerage market is pegged to grow at a CAGR of 6.3 percent. This rate of growth is backed by a number of factors which will provide positive impetus to the segment. Cargo logistics brokerage is highly important for trade as it forms a vital link between shippers and carriers. These brokers aim to provide services to both the sides and thus facilitate smooth execution of trades. While they help shippers by connecting them to appropriate carriers, they also aid carriers by helping them fill their capacity.

Global Cargo logistics brokerage market is likely to receive positive impetus from the growth in trade. Further, the increasingly complex regulatory environment governing the sector is also expected to fuel the growth in the market as shippers and carriers may need specialized and dedicated service providers. Further, the constant change in technologies has also facilitated the growth of the segment.
