The three certifications our products have achieved give me confidence that it's safe to use on babies' delicate skin.”

“The three certifications our products have achieved give me confidence that it's safe to use on babies' delicate skin. In addition, our formula is also a good environmental choice,” said Sissel Skjerdal, the spokesperson from Mori of Norway.

The impressive lineup of ingredients used to manufacture the product includes canola oil, caprylic/capric triglyceride, brassica campestris seed oil, brassica napus seed oil, and simmondsia chinensis seed oil. The company says that this 100% natural product can be a good choice for a neutral baby shower unisex gift set for a boy or girl, along with Mori of Norway's Baby Nappy Cream. It can also be used as a base oil in combination with essential oils to create a rejuvenating blend.

“This oil was fantastic. We added this to our daughter's bath and then applied some to her skin after her bath. It made her skin feel lovely and smooth. As the oil was added to her bath, when we washed her hair and dried it, it helped give her hair a shiny and soft look,” a buyer mentions in her Amazon review.
