Nail glue is used to stick broken nails to the natural nail bed. These nail glues are also designed to protect natural nails. Sometimes what appears to be external damage due to injuries or even disease processes, can cause nails to appear yellow. This can lead to severely discoloured and damaged nails. It can also cause them to fall out. For this purpose, nail glue is used. The busy lifestyle of people tends to hamper the needed care of the nails.

This, in turn, encourages the population to use easy ways like nail glue to provide care for the nails. The global nail glue market report analyses the growing demand for nail glues mostly among women customers. This increasing demand has also directed towards the packaging of the nail glue which is similar to the traditional nail polish and is also directly operated by the brush. The report also points towards the inclination of the consumers towards the key players in the nail glue market which are focusing on improving the quality and effectiveness of nail glues.

Market Segmentation

The nail glue market is improving and based on the type of nail glues, the market can be segmented into Gradient colour and Solid colour. Gradient colour is a combination of different colours and is a new trend when it comes to maintaining attractive nails. While a solid colour is just one type of nail colour that is applied to the nails. The nail glue type varies depending on different colour types. On the other hand, based on the application of nail glue, the market can be segmented into commercial and residential subsegments. The demand for nail glue is on the rise, hence, the nail glue companies have set up manufacturing and processing for both commercial and residential sectors.

Regional Overview

Countries like Canada, Mexico, France, Russia, Italy, UK, Germany, Japan, India, China, Argentina, Brazil, Korea, UK, USA, Colombia, UAE, Saudi Arabia, Nigeria, Egypt and South Africa and regions like Southeast Asia have an increasing demand for the nail glue market. The manufacturing, processing, and packaging of nail glues has boosted up. The companies have been focusing on providing drying durable and more moisture-resistant nail glues add more strength and enhance the quality of the nail colour without producing any side effects on the nails. Because the nail glue meets the light-curing relationship, companies around the world are painting the outside of a nail glue bottle to prevent light transmission.

Industry News

In pop culture, nail glue has become a popular trend among celebrities. From Beyoncé and Jay-Z to Lady Gaga, a large number of public figures are getting nail art done. Miho Okawara, a professional manicurist who worked with a large number of celebrities, has recently revealed some of the major trends in nail artwork. During an interview with a fashion magazine, Okawara said that the use of nail glue has significantly gone up in the last few years however, celebrities are also trying other alternatives.
