Launch of Unique Bracelet Honors
Victims of Global Genocide

New York City, NY (November 07, 2019)
– I Remember & Company LLC is proud to announce the launch of their signature product, the I REMEMBER BRACELET™.

This unique piece of jewelry was conceived by Bonnie Glogover, business innovator and entrepreneur,
in memory of her beloved late father,
Holocaust survivor, Stanley (Szlamek)
Jackson Glogover, (1925 –2013).
However, it was created to honor all victims and survivors of genocide worldwide, past and present.

Together with her business partner, Fifth Avenue jeweler, Philip J. Weisner, (also a descendant of Holocaust survivors) she formed the I Remember & Company LLC.

The bracelet is designed to evoke meaningful dialogue between the wearer and those who look upon it. Think of it as wearing history on your arm. It can also serve as a bridge between generations.”

“I felt the need for a memorial piece of jewelry made in shining metals,” says Bonnie, “that would reflect my father’s wartime experiences. Prayer and faith helped him to survive two years in Auschwitz. But, since genocide can, and is happening again, my partner and I thought of a bracelet that would revere every victim of ethnic cleansing.”

Jeweler, Philip J. Weisner says, “My ideas for the bracelet considered what it meant to be removed from one’s homeland, dispossessed, exiled, and even worse. My design interpretation is derived from the train tracks of the rail-head at Birkenau. This is not only where Jews suffered, but where thousands of prisoners, representing many faiths and nationalities, were selected to live or perish. The bracelet is a resonant symbol of defiance and hope.”

A percentage of all purchases of the I REMEMBER BRACELET will be donated to the USC Shoah Foundation. To explore the USC Shoah Foundation’s mission, testimony collection and Stronger Than Hate initiative, visit: <https://sfi.usc.edu/>.

I Remember & Company LLC, will also be sending matching funds to a different human rights charity every month. These will be non-profits that serve refugees and migrants worldwide uprooted from their homes by war, crime and political injustice.

The I REMEMBER BRACELET collection is produced in silver, 18-carat yellow, rose and white gold, and in platinum. The item is gender-neutral and is intended to be worn permanently to signify a journey of love and memory. The phrase “I REMEMBER” is inscribed on the inside, with space allowed to engrave the name of a loved one.

Bonnie comments, “The bracelet is designed to evoke conversations and meaningful dialogue between the wearer and those who look upon it. Think of it as wearing history on your arm. It can also serve as a bridge between generations.”
