Overview

The Sanitary Towel is a term used instead of the sanitary napkin or the sanitary pad. The Sanitary Towel refers to the absorbent pad that is being worn by the women on their panties during the time of periods in the process to absorb the menstrual blood. These Sanitary Towels are a product that has been made up of cotton for the purpose of avoiding rashes and irritation on the skin. The Sanitary Towel or the Sanitary Pads do come in a large number of variety and sizes.

The sanitary towel should be chosen, keeping in mind the menstrual flow of the individual and her preferences. The clean napkin should choose the appropriate length, thickness, and the level of absorbency. For the beginners, the choice of Sanitary Towel maybe a work of difficulty, but as the age progresses after a few times, the individual would be able to settle down according to her needs.

The use of a Sanitary Towel needs no rocket science and is actually very easy to use. Some of the necessary steps should be followed during the use of a Sanitary Towel.

The paper on the reverse side of the pad should be removed first and should be placed on the panty.

Then the release paper should be removed from the wings, and then the wings should be wrapped around the lower portion of the panty and pressed firmly.

The pad should be wrapped in a paper before disposing of it in a dustbin.

The disposal of the pad shall not be done in a toilet, or it should not be flushed away, as it may result in clogging.
