The production will run three shows from December 13-15, and theatergoers can choose between an evening showing and two matinee showings. New this year is a traditional Christmas Market that will be accompanying the production. The market is open to the public, and vendors will be a mix of Charis students and Woodland Park community crafters.

This year's production will also incorporate actors from the Orlando theme park The Holy Land Experience.”

companion storybook, The Servant King, which plays a key role in the action of the musical, will be available for purchase this year at each showing.

In the musical, this heirloom storybook is handed down over four generations. As the family keeps their Christmas tradition of reading the ancient tale of the “fourth” wise man, the story comes to life as a grand musical production on stage. Framed by on-screen projections and backgrounds from The Servant King storybook, The Heart of Christmas combines a unique cinematic feel to the live-musical experience.
