

Marshall Faulk Has a Message for Kids at the NFL Alumni Golf Tournament

Hall of Fame running back says kids need to know the truth about drugs.

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, UNITED STATES, November 21, 2019 /EINPresswire.com/ -- NFL Legend Marshall Faulk is all about helping kids. That's why he is representing Foundation for a Drug-Free World at the NFL Alumni Mexico Golf Classic November 21-22.

NFL Alumni fundraisers promote active and healthy living while they raise funds for worthy causes to benefit youth. And Hall of Fame running back Marshall Faulk fits right in with this purpose.

But as spokesperson for Foundation for a Drug-Free World, his first message is actually to parents.

"Drugs are something that is someone else's problem until it's your kid," he says, "and by then it's too late."

The Drug-Free World drug education materials and curriculum, translated into 20 languages, have already been adopted by the school systems of Baja California Sur and the State of Mexico.

Faulk, the father of five, wants to help educate kids on what drugs are and what they do. "We found that when they know this, they don't feel the need to experiment and they won't allow peer pressure to bait them into taking drugs," he says.
