“This is our holiday gift to our clients and may be used at any time in the future once booking for the villa takes place by the middle of December.” says; Alexandra Baradi, the owner and CEO of Exceptional Villas.

The popularity of vacation rentals over hotels is increasing around the world. The projected revenue for the industry in 2020 is over 58 billion dollars. The number of users of homes and villas around the world is projected to be over 300 million. People around the globe realise that staying in a villa offers more privacy, more space and better value to many hotels of the equivalent standard. Vacation rentals are also an excellent option for larger groups, extended families and special occasions such an anniversary party or small destination wedding.

The company commenced operations in 1992 and offers some of the most exclusive villas in the world. They feature villas in many of the world's most sought after destinations such as the Maldives, Barbados, Turks and Caicos, Mexico, St Barts, Switzerland, Italy and Hawaii.

Exceptional Villas also has a unique approach to how they operate. They only feature villas that have been personally inspected and take much time chatting with each client. This interaction ensures full understanding of clients' needs and requirements.

While there is a trend for online booking in the mass market, the trend in the luxury market is for more client interaction. Clients wish to speak and engage with travel experts such as Exceptional Villas before committing to a high spend booking.

The amount the clients receive depends on the value of their booking

- $250 USD off for total rental value of $7,000 - $8,999 USD
- $500 USD off for total rental value of $9,000 - $14,999 USD
