

Organisers of Global MilSatCom announce Space Week, taking place in London, 27th - 30th April 2020

SMi reports: Space Week has been launched and will comprise of two exciting conferences – Small Satellites and Military Space Situational Awareness.

LONDON, UNITED KINGDOM, December 2, 2019 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Consideration of both passive SSA and comprehensive Space Domain Awareness is as critical as ever, as highlighted in recent US policy announcements that space is no longer a passive domain.

With this in mind, SMi Group are delighted to announce the launch of Space Week, which will comprise of two conferences: Small Satellites (27th-28th April) and Military Space Situational Awareness (29th-30th April). The events will explore both the expansion of small, nano and cube satellite constellations and their implications for future terrestrial capabilities, as well as the growing importance of how we track and manage assets along with debris mitigation and developing deorbiting strategies to protect the domain for future.

Space Week 2020 - Small Satellites and Military Space Situational Awareness

THE SMALL SATELLITES CONFERENCE will explore the future of commercial and military space in LEO and other orbits market. Key topics at this event will include the legal policy framework for operating in space, creating a regulatory structure to support the small satellite industry, how data networking across small satellite constellations is enabling new connectivity on the ground, innovation, mission insurance, manufacturing and national programme updates.

THE MILITARY SPACE SITUATIONAL AWARENESS CONFERENCE will return for its 15th year, as the leading conference in Europe dedicated to space surveillance. Building on the successes of last year's conference, it will bring together over 150 experts from across the UK, US, Europe and beyond to discuss and coordinate the future of SST and STM across the alliance.

Space Week is a key diary date for those in the industry, as the events aim to provide a holistic view of the new space environment. Not only this, delegates will have the opportunity to network with international representatives from leading organisations from across the globe.

For those interested in attending one or both of the Space Week conferences, there is an early bird discount of £400 available for bookings made before 13th December 2019.
