

EndoCleanse™, A Ground-Breaking Product In the Cannabis Sector by Jetblack Corp. (JTBK)

Commercializing innovation for the benefit of society and shareholders

NEW YORK, NY, USA , December 2, 2019 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Jetblack Corp. (OTCMKTS: JTBK) "the company" "JTBK" provided more details on EndoCleanse™, a "first of its kind" product in formulation.

EndoCleanse™ is a product that will give the daily consumer of cannabis, the ability to feel like they have taken a break from consuming cannabis, flushing the receptors (CB1 and CB2), which will make the intake of marijuana and its desired effects more efficient.

Additional benefits of EndoCleanse™ would be, saving a consumer time and money. Taking away the need to constantly seek out different strains, along with consuming less marijuana in general.

The company believes that regular daily consumers of marijuana will benefit greatly from this product. Daily consumers often need to seek out different strains to feel a strong effect or seek out concentrates.

Statistics have shown upwards of 10% of the adult population in the US consume marijuana daily. Roughly another 10% consume weekly. "This is a huge market with lots of untapped potential, even amongst daily users, not to mention the weekly consumers," explained Jetblack Corp. CEO.

The recent identification of cannabinoid receptors, CB1 and CB2 receptors has started an exponential growth of studies exploring the endocannabinoid system and its regulatory functions concerning health and disease.

The endocannabinoid system is still being studied, and research is in its infancy. The company believes this product may also benefit non-cannabis users as well, as we know now the endocannabinoid system plays an important role in our health. "This is why we have stated from
