

Updates on the UK MoD's LE TacCIS Programme at Future Armoured Vehicles Situational Awareness 2020

Smi Reports: Senior representative from the UK MoD will be presenting updates on the LE TacCIS programme at the conference in London, next April

LONDON, UNITED KINGDOM, December 11, 2019 / EINPresswire.com/ -- SMi Group's 5th Annual Future Armoured Vehicles Situational Awareness Conference will be held on the 1st and 2nd April 2020, in London. The event provides a great opportunity to collaborate with technical leads, platform managers and programme directors to share their insights on the latest systems and sub-systems, providing greater awareness of existing capabilities and future requirements.

The biggest early bird discount of £400 is expiring on Friday 13th December 2019. Register at <http://www.armouredvehicles-sa.com/einpr3>

The UK's LE TacCIS programme is focused on two end benefits for the British Army; improved operational effectiveness and reduced whole life costs. Military commanders in the Land Environment will be enabled by agile ICS, allowing for informed and timely decisions.

'Information is valued, exploited and protected as a critical Army asset to maximise advantage in a trusted Single Information Environment' (Army Information Sub-Strategy) (royalsignals.org)

With this in mind, Lieutenant Colonel John Dagless, Senior Requirements Manager, BATCIS, ISS, Joint Forces Command, UK MoD will be presenting a keynote address on day-two.

His presentation 'Delivering Information Capabilities to British Forces Through the LE TacCIS Programme' will discuss:

- The burgeoning information zeitgeist and the challenge of change in the Land Domain
- What is the LE TacCIS Programme and what does it mean to you?
- User experience, putting our soldiers' needs first
- Information in manoeuvre: open, agile, interoperable...
