

TEDxWinterPark Announces its First TEDx Talk – Being Human is the Theme

This year's theme is an examination of "all things that could define us as a species while looking at the most intriguing aspects of ourselves"

ORLANDO, FL, USA, December 11, 2019 /EINPresswire.com/ -- TEDxWinterPark is an independently organized TED event founded in 2019. TEDx is a program of local self-organized events that bring people together to share a TED Talk Experience. TEDxWinterPark is announcing its first TEDx Talk "Being Human" on Friday, December 13, 2019. This TEDx Talk will feature TEDx Speakers from industries ranging from entertainment, fashion, science, health, technology, and business.

"In the early 1980s, there was a convergence taking place between technology, businesses, the entertainment industry, and design professions. Not many people saw it. I did and thought it was a great opportunity to follow my passion in life, which has always been to meet interesting people. I wanted TED to be innovative..." - Richard Saul Wurman, creator of the TED Conference coordinator. Jody has managed specialized crime watch programs and served as the Executive Director of Police Activities League for 10 years. Her passion for excellence within public service has been demonstrated through the implementation of humane social service programs such as "Project Home-Bound". This program reduced police calls related to indigent individuals, resulting in an 80% reduction of required law enforcement response. Jody believes that law enforcement officers are the front line social servants and that they should be highly educated in order to best serve the citizens of their communities. Her vision for transparent policing, as well as enlightening the public about the human side of police officers, is the focus and primary goal within both her speech, and her career.
