

US Army Futures Command to Provide Updates at Defence Logistics Central and Eastern Europe 2020

Mr Stephen Moody, Director, Combat Feeding Directorate, CCDC Solider Center, US Army Futures Command will be speaking at the Defence Logistics CEE Conference

BUDAPEST, HUNGARY, December 12, 2019 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The 5th Annual Defence Logistics Central and Eastern Europe Conference is set to convene in Budapest on the 3rd-4th March 2020. Attendees will have the opportunity to uncover new strategies to improve operations and reduce costs across their supply chain network by exploring key topics such as heavy-lift, interoperability, supply-chain management solutions, MRO capabilities and more.

For those interested in attending, an early bird saving of £200 will expire on Friday 13th December 2019 at midnight: <http://www.defence-logisticscee.com/EINpr4>

The agenda will feature 21+ briefings from high ranking military and industry experts. One of these presentations will be given by Mr Stephen Moody, Director, Combat Feeding Directorate, CCDC Solider Center, US Army Futures Command, who will be speaking on 'Easing the Logistics Burden Associated with Military Feeding and Reducing the Combat Load of Individual Soldiers', discussing:

- Technologies for the reduction of weight and volume of military rations
- Changing eating behaviors and their application to military feeding
- Nutritional interventions for improved performance and recovery
- Tailored nutrition for mission requirements and operational environment

The DoD Combat Feeding Directorate (CFD) executes a Joint-Service program, which includes research and engineering for combat rations, food packaging, quality, safety, performance nutrition, Class 1 logistics optimization, and field food service equipment to develop or improve general and specialized combat feeding systems in response to changing modes of warfare and industry capabilities.
