Surge in the Demand from the Healthcare Sector to Offer an Impetus to the Market Growth

Growing demand for Blister Packaging from the healthcare sector is one of the significant factors driving the Blister Packaging market. Apart from extending the product's shelf life, Blister

Packaging helps in eliminating the need for additional cartons, thus cutting down the cost of packaging. This is eventually increasing the adoption of such packaging solutions among the end-use industries. Emergence of bio-based plastics is anticipated to open novel avenues for the Blister Packaging market in the coming years.
