

Is an ICON Students Waterloo Apartment Right for You? Take This Quiz To Find Out!

WATERLOO, ONTARIO, CANADA, January 22, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- When you first consider moving out of your parents' home, the living space options can be a little overwhelming! Should you rent a pre-fab unit in a complex? Sprawl out artfully in a loft? Opt for an older building that's chock full of charm and character, but also drafty and expensive to heat? Try condo living? Join a fraternity or sorority and live with other pledges? Or is luxury student living at ICON Students Waterloo right for you? Each of these accommodations has its advantages and downsides, so we've created this fun quiz to help you decide!

1. When it comes to your neighbors, would you rather:

- A. Live among fellow students, so that it's easy to socialize and give each other moral support.
- B. Not know anyone's names; the people who live next door or downstairs are neighbors, not friends.
- C. Be surrounded by your closest buddies — and a few classmates who can help you cram for exams.

2. After a day jam-packed with classes, labs, club meetings, study groups, and trying to catch professors during their office hours, all you want to do is:

- A. Relieve some stress with a restorative yoga session or a half-hour on the treadmill, then catch a movie.
- B. Eat a spartan dinner of thin gruel, turn off your phone so no one can interrupt your solitude, and get to sleep by 8 p.m.
- C. Bring your besties back to your place, order in some Chinese food, then spend the evening playing Overwatch on your Xbox.

3. How do you like to get yourself to classes?

- A. A short walk. You love living as close to campus as possible, so you can pop home for meals or meet classmates at the library on a moment's notice.
- B. Drive your behemoth '75 Dodge Charger, which you inherited from your grandfather and are determined to drive into the ground. Never mind the expense of gas and insurance or the hassle of finding a parking spot.
- C. On your bike. It's good exercise, there's no waiting for public transportation, and it's more environmentally friendly than driving.

4. What's your M.O. when you start to feel hungry?

- A. Cook up delicious, healthy foods at home. There's something therapeutic about making a meal from scratch, and it's a true pleasure when you have high-end appliances. Plus you can prepare anything your cravings desire!
- B. Take your chances at the cafeteria, or freeload off that one friend who always attends class with plenty of snacks.
- C. Stroll down the street and scope out the many restaurants, cafes, and takeout places in the neighborhood. It can be hard to decide, but since you live so close, you'll be able to try them all eventually.

5. Which environment makes you feel most focused and productive when you really need to study, read for class, or write a paper?

- A. A quiet workspace dedicated solely to studying, where no one will interrupt your concentration. If you are heading up a group project, a larger but similarly secluded space that you can reserve ahead of time is ideal.
- B. A crowded library. Sure, there are lots of distractions and it can be difficult to actually accomplish anything, but that's where college students are supposed to study! Right?
- C. Your own space. It's convenient, comfortable, and private, and you have everything you need — a washroom, drinks, snacks, all of your textbooks and notebooks — close at hand.
