IDAHO FALLS, IDAHO, UNITED STATES, January 28, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- In a world where the stress of everyday life can hit us hard, our family is our pillar of strength and support where the entire family gains a real comforting sense of belonging. Research shows that having solid family relationships are essential to our well-being and pivotal to how we connect and interact with the outside world. But every family has their ups and downs and life is not without its challenges and struggles.

Lois is an exceptional Licensed and Certified Life coach providing the most optimal tools to resolve conflicts and facilitate relationships so families can truly connect.

"When I assist parents in sharpening their parenting skills, I utilize the most practical resources available," says Lois. "Although raising children can be extremely rewarding it naturally has it's frustrating and overwhelming moments. By objectively assisting each family member to navigate through difficult situations they experience a different mindset and establish more highly effective ways of communicating with one another. It's especially gratifying helping children and teenagers find clarity and well-balanced lives."

A loving mom of 5 and grandmother of seventeen grandchildren, Lois is familiar with quintessential meaning of a nurturing family environment. Bullied as a child, she was fortunate to have the support and the encouragement of her mother that helped her recognize her strengths and literally blossom. When she got married, although regrettably after 35 years after it didn't work out, Lois faced a painful time of great loss, she stood strong and encouraged herself to embrace a positive future and move forward even after the heartbreak of divorce. After seeking out a coach who brought her the proper guidance to transition with reassurance, Lois knew becoming a Family coach was her life's purpose and she has never looked back.

"I'm familiar with the heartache in relationships but now I thrive in the joy of compassion and tolerance and the ability to heal through forgiveness," says Lois. "As a life coach I offer the most innovative solution-focused tools to work through issues such as encouraging forgiveness. By allowing people to make mistakes, because none of us are perfect can healing truly occur."

Lois's coaching sessions are tailored to each and every family member since every person is an individual with different needs. In order to help, each of her clients begin strengthening relationships with one another.

Lois says, whether it's God or the universe, there is something that is bigger than we are. Through careful observation of the family circumstances, she helps them establish positive thinking with programs that are tailored to each family that is both sustainable and effective.

"I find so much joy especially working with children and teens seeing them progress and acquire joy from my coaching sessions as their family connects on a deeper level and achieves happiness through understanding each other's unique gifts," says Lois.

"Families are the core of our civilization," says Lois. "If our families can stay together amicably with love and respect, we can make a difference in so many additional lives. Helping our children truly value relationships and move forward with positivity is a key. Looking to the future compassionately will give them bright, successful futures because love is the answer and forgiveness is the joy to our life's journey."
