Science, technology, engineering, and math are among the fastest-growing studies in the country. By getting students excited about STEM early on, schools are creating life-long learners. Over one-third of all college students are in the STEM fields.

EEACS has been celebrated for its rich science and mathematics programs. Community partnerships allow students the opportunity to intern with local industries and partner with experienced mentors.

This is not the first grant the Lehigh Valley charter school has received. In 2019, the school received a Dollar General Youth Literacy grant for $3,000 and Lowe's Toolbox for Education grant for $4,980. These grants helped purchase reading collections and iPads for students.
