

National Floors Direct Restores Flooring in Historic Pier A Harbor House

ASTORIA, NY, UNITED STATES, February 21, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- New York City's culture is as rich as its history, a fact reflected in the Big Apple's myriad architectural landmarks, some of which, like the Historic Pier A Harbor House, have been cornerstones of the community for a century or more. Since 1886, Pier A, which design mirrors New York's most prominent landmark The Statue of Liberty, has served the city. Like many architectural greats, it has been rehabilitated more than once to maintain its splendor for generations to come. Most recently, owners of the Pier A Harbor House hired National Floors Direct to restore the building's flooring. This included a complete overhaul of the wood flooring in the site's Black Tail restaurant, which The Daily Beast ranked #29 of the 150 best bars in the U.S.

Pier A Harbor House, with its impressive WWI memorial, distinct design, and extensive history, underwent extensive renovations from 2009 to 2014 after several years of being neglected and left in disrepair. In the years since, thanks in part to help from community-minded companies like National Floors Direct, the property has become a seaside hub once again.
