Market Overview:

Water is life and so it is necessary to purify water before drinking the same. Water that comes through the common municipal pipeline may not be safe to drink. The water might be contaminated. It is important to remove the harmful impurities that might be present in the water. Thus, it becomes necessary to install household water purifier filter in order to filter the waste and contaminants from the Water to make it pure, clean, safe and sustainable in its use.

Human body requires minerals and a lot of it are present in water. Minerals are present in water but intake of excess of minerals might also lead to ailments. A good household water purifier filter is the one which removes excess minerals but retains the necessary and essential elements of minerals for bodily intake. It is necessary that excess salts, particulate matter and microbes are removed by filtration process from the water. Filters use chemicals and some others use electro static charge to remove the virus from water.

The filters come with activated silver lining which kills bacteria. Pathogens are removed by the mixture of sand and gravel that is present in the filter. R.O system which is most widely used follows multi stage filtration of water and removed bacteria. The impure water is removed out through an outlet pipe and the clean water is filled in the tank which can be used for drinking purpose. Some filters also use Ultra Violet light which is also capable of killing the bacteria.
