LONDON, GREATER LONDON, UK, February 28, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The global motors and generators market is expected to grow at a rate of about 3.52% to nearly $99.7 billion by 2023. The increasing use of household appliances is expected to contribute to the growth of the motors and generators manufacturing market in the forecast period. However, increased tariffs on raw materials such as steel and aluminum restrains the market for motors and generators manufacturing.

The motors and generators market consists of sales of motors, generators, and related services. The motor converts electrical energy into mechanical energy and the generator converts mechanical energy into electrical energy.
