For Immediate Release - MEXICO CITY, MX - MARCH 2, 2020 - One of the largest companies in Mexico, Corporativo Kosmos, has announced its commitment to reducing the environmental impact made by the transportation industry by joining Mexico's voluntary Clean Transportation Program.

Under the direction of Elias Landsmanas Dymensztejn, entrepreneur, philanthropist, and Chairman of Corporativo Kosmos, the +50-year-old company's Sustainability Platform and plan highlights two specific elements: the first, a reduction in the amount of CO2 emissions produced by their fleet, and the second, a similar reduction in methane.

"Corporativo Kosmos' Sustainability Platform is proudly at the vanguard of industry efforts to be better environmental citizens of Mexico and the world," said Elias Landsmanas Dymensztejn. "These programs fit within our commitment to facing the environmental challenges of the transportation industry with honesty and a sense of service to the environment, our clients, and the global community as a whole."

The new regulations announced last month by Mexico's Ministry of the Environment and Natural Resources (SEMARNAT) are inspiring transport businesses to reduce their overall carbon footprint in an effort to move the country's transportation industry towards to a cleaner future. The Clean Transportation Program also seeks to create a positive feedback loop. This means that companies like Corporativo Kosmos that adopt measures to reduce fuel use and emissions, will in turn be promoted by the program so that those seeking to ship goods choose to contract with the environmentally-aware firms.
