5.0 out of 5 stars The Future of Public Transportation is the best book on the subject that I know.

I believe this book is a gift to all those who are interested in understanding the current state of public transport in the world, particularly in the United States, and what its future may look like. It does not matter if you are a veteran or a new transit executive; a federal or state government transportation official; an elected official at any level; or one of those who has a passionate interest in public transit – you must pick up this book and read it!

Paul Comfort, who wrote and compiled this book, is an extremely astute transit expert, or as he calls himself, a “transit evangelist.” This is not only based on his years of transit experience, including his role as CEO of the Maryland MTA, but also on the numerous interviews he made with transit CEOs as part of the Transit Unplugged podcast series and observations he made at many systems he visited. Paul has contributed a great deal of his knowledge and experience to this work, but equally beneficial is his ability to incorporate the expertise of industry colleagues to provide a balanced and comprehensive treatment of the transit issues of today.

“The Future of Public Transportation” will be available for digital/Kindle download for $.99 only through Saturday, March 14, 2020!
