

iTechArt and ff Venture Capital Team up in Strategic Partnership, Boosting the Startup Community

iTechArt has started a partnership with a venture capital firm providing seed-stage and early-stage funding to engineering companies.

NEW YORK, NY, UNITED STATES, March 11, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- iTechArt (<http://www.itechart.com/>), a leading vendor of custom software development services, announced that it has recently started a partnership with ff Venture Capital (ffVC) — a venture capital firm providing seed-stage and early-stage funding to engineering companies.

The newly-established business relationship is underpinned by sharing similar values and dedication to groundbreaking technologies. Both parties are successfully trying to cover all the blind spots in the startup ecosystem — ffVC invests in future innovators' first steps while iTechArt secured a reputation as the go-to company for startups seeking to create visionary tech products and get proactive support from MVP to IPO.

Since 2012, iTechArt has been partnering with and investing in such angel funds as Scout Ventures, ARC Angel Fund, and DreamIT aimed to jumpstart early-stage technology businesses with strong growth potential. As this is exactly what ffVC does, the collaboration promises to be very productive.

“Both iTechArt and ff Venture Capital are hyper-focused on engaging with dynamic, fast-moving, industry-defining businesses,” said Konstantin Tsybulko, iTechArt’s VP of Business Development. “We are parts of the same puzzle, making up a truly innovative startup, so it becomes even more pleasant to work with like minds. I think that this partnership will help the young companies pioneer the possible and approach the impossible in the ever-changing technology world.”
