For litigants interested bringing in a neutral to assist in binding or nonbinding options including mediations, facilitations, arbitrations, remote video ADR services are an increasingly worthwhile option. Remote video mediations provide a number of benefits in this environment such as:

Safe and sanitary conditions

No travel time or travel costs

More efficient mediations

Ability to share screens

Instant file sharing

Unlimited participants

Secure connections

Confidential option

Parties can make arrangements for their clients to join video conferences remotely as well. The logistical advantages of remote mediations conducted by videoconferencing, as opposed to traditional mediations are significant. Clients, medical providers, lienholders, and insurance adjusters that are far away can simply join the mediation from their computer, tablet, or even from their smartphone. Additionally, if the trial court is unable to hold a trial or hearing due to the Coronavirus protocols, the parties may enlist the remote ADR services of The Michigan Law Firm, PC to swiftly, fairly, and safely resolve your issues.
