Clutch named TechAhead as one of the top performing developers

we're truly ahead of our digital competitors. We're particularly proud to announce that just recently, the research firm Clutch named us one of the top-performing developers on their reputable B2B ratings and reviews site!

Just as all digital firms aren't created equal, neither are research firms. What sets Clutch apart is that their trained business analysts take in-depth and impartial interviews with the clients about the quality of engagement with each Clutch-registered company. Based on their verified B2B research, Clutch highlights its highest-ranking firms across industries.

The Clutch Leader Awards recognize companies' commitment to broadening their expertise, providing stellar customer service, and producing high-quality results for clients. These firms meet the Clutch Research Methodology's standards of excellence and can be trusted by potential B2B buyers to excel at new projects.

Clutch provides nonpartisan, quantitative, and qualitative analysis about leading IT Services firms, which makes this recognition even more important. We're delighted to be recognized amongst the best AngularJS development companies, and we anticipate our industry expertise will only increase in 2020.

Since joining Clutch, we've collected more than 40 client reviews and a very high company rating. We're excited to refer our clients to our Clutch profile so that they can provide unbiased feedback of our services, project management style, our team structure, and, more importantly - key information that is all too often left out of reviews.

There's a lot more about us, so be sure to peruse our Clutch profile. You can also see our success stories on our digital portfolio. And then reach out — we're eager to hear from you!
