is a world leader in nonsurgical cosmetic procedures who recently incorporated the KeraLase procedure in his office, The Aesthetic Clinique.

Hair loss affects more than 100 million people in the United States and has significant psycho-social effects on individuals who suffer from this malady. In 2014, Dr. Weiner began using Platelet Rich Plasma, PRP, injections for hair restoration in both men and women. PRP is obtained by drawing a patient's blood and then centrifuging it to obtain a platelet concentration that is much higher than what is normally found in blood. Platelets contain growth and healing factors which, when injected, will improve hair density and thickness. Unfortunately, PRP composition varies from person to person due to variability of platelet concentrations among patients. There are also negative growth factors in PRP, one specifically, TGF-b1, which actually inhibits hair growth. As a consequence, patients response to PRP injections is highly variable. In addition, recent literature has proven that patients who have taken aspirin will have significantly less release of growth factors from their platelets and suggests that their PRP injection results will be negatively affected. Other medications such as nonsteroidal anti-inflammatories (NSAIDS) might also affect PRP results but have yet to be tested. Lastly, PRP requires multiple injections which can be uncomfortable and often require numbing injections or "laughing gas" to be more tolerable.

Using the LaseMD Ultra on the Scalp to Create Microchannels

Dr. Steven F. Weiner believes KeraLase is an ideal treatment for the more than 100 million American hair loss sufferers because it offers a pain-free 10 minute procedure with proven results.”

KeraFactor contains 5 of the beneficial growth factors found in PRP which have been synthetically (biomimetic) produced and 2 skin proteins. It specifically does not contain any negative growth factors such as TGF-b1. The growth factors are wrapped with a nanoliposome coating to improve penetration of these factors to the level of the hair stem cells.

LaseMD Ultra from Lutronic, is a near painless laser treatment that is performed on the scalp prior to application of the KeraFactor. LaseMD Ultra creates microscopic channels in the scalp skin to improve penetration of the KeraFactor by 5-7 times. It is performed without any numbing cream in about 5-7 minutes. Using the LaseMD Ultra alone has been shown to improve hair growth.

KeraFactor is massaged into the scalp after preparation with the LaseMD Ultra. There is no downtime or discomfort after the procedure. Typical treatments are performed every 2 weeks for a total of 6 in a series. The entire procedure, start to finish usually takes about 10 minutes.

KeraLase has been shown to improve the hair densities and hair shaft thickness in early studies. The overall scalp health also improves using an objective grading scale.
