

No School? Use Pocket Change to Help Educate Children at Home

National Coin Week, April 19-25, 2020, emphasizes that money is history you can hold in your hands.

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLORADO, UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, April 2, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Common, everyday pocket change at home can be used to help educate children whether their schools are temporarily closed or not, according to the nonprofit American Numismatic Association (www.money.org). The 25,000-member organization will mark the 97th annual National Coin Week (www.NationalCoinWeek.org), April 19-25, 2020.

“Money is history you can hold in your hands. The designs, denominations and metallic content of coins tell us a great deal about civilizations, past and present, such as famous and not-so-famous political and historical figures, important events and landmarks,” stated National Coin Week coordinator Andy Dickes.

Even a common Lincoln penny can be educational and fun. (United States Mint image.)

“Former presidents and other designs depicted on coin denominations -- the Abraham Lincoln cent, Thomas Jefferson nickel, Franklin D. Roosevelt dime and George Washington quarter-dollar -- can be useful educational tools to teach school-age children about history, art, geography and even math. Virtually any coins in pockets, purses, and socks drawers can be handy teaching tools,” he explained.

“

Money is history you can hold in your hands.”

Andy Dickes, National Coin Week coordinator

The American Numismatic Association provides complimentary educational games and quizzes for children on the organization’s website at www.money.org/money-musements. The United States Mint also offers free, online educational games about money at www.USMint.gov/learn/kids/games.

National Coin Week focuses attention on the historical, cultural, artistic and economic importance of money as well as the enjoyment of coin and paper money collecting.

The theme of this year’s National Coin Week is “Remarkable Women: Catalysts for Change,” which is inspired by the 100th anniversary of the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution 1920 granting women the right to vote, as well as celebrating the many contributions of women in society and numismatics.

Several historical women have been depicted on United States money including President Washington's wife, Martha, on $1 bills issued in the 1880s and 1890s; suffragette Susan B. Anthony on $1 denomination coins from 1979 to 1981, and native American Indian Sacagawea, who assisted the 1804-1806 Lewis and Clark Expedition, has been depicted on golden dollar coins since 2000.

For additional information about National Coin Week, visit www.NationalCoinWeek.org.

Andy Dickes
American Numismatic Association
+1 719-482-9814
email us here

Native American Indian Sacagawea, who assisted the 1804-1806 Lewis and Clark Expedition, has been depicted on U.S. golden dollar coins since 2000. (United States Mint image.)

This press release can be viewed online at: <http://www.einpresswire.com>

Disclaimer: If you have any questions regarding information in this press release please contact the company listed in the press release. Please do not contact EIN Presswire. We will be unable to assist you with your inquiry. EIN Presswire disclaims any content contained in these releases. © 1995-2020 IPD Group, Inc. All Right Reserved.