

Small Satellites Conference Postponed to September 2020, Following COVID-19 Concerns

SMI reports: Following concerns over COVID-19 and public gatherings, April's Small Satellites conference will now commence in September 2020.

LONDON, UNITED KINGDOM, April 7, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- SMi Group's Small Satellites conference, which was scheduled to convene in London on 27th – 28th April 2020, has been rescheduled to 1st – 2nd September, following concerns over COVID-19 and public gatherings.

The two-day event will bring together a variety of senior representatives from across the alliance to meet, network and explore the small satellites revolution and its impact on future space.

With nations around the world developing their small satellites capability at speed, governments and trans-national agencies must manage this changing domain. As such, Small Satellites 2020 will consider best practise, regulatory principals, production and operational lessons learnt to effectively utilise this revolutionised resource.

To register for the conference or to find out more, interested parties should visit: <http://www.small-satellites.com/EINpr6>

Small Satellites 2020 Highlights:

- Explore the LEO/GEO small, cube and nano-satellite market and its impact on future space
- Delve into key topics surrounding the new space market including: the legal and policy framework for operating in space, creating a regulatory structure to support the small satellite industry and how data networking across small satellite constellations is enabling new connectivity on the ground
- Learn about key programmes being developed by emerging space companies and national governments

- Exhibition opportunities for industry to showcase their capabilities

Bookings made by 30th April will receive a £600 early bird discount: <http://www.small-satellites.com/EINpr6>
