A nasal strip is like a Band-Aid with a flexible backbone that holds the nostrils open when the strip is stuck across the bridge of the nose. Nasal strips have been shown to be easy to use and without deleterious side effects. People with snoring problems are increasingly preferring nasal strips since it overcomes the need for surgery. Apart from that, nasal strips are also used on a regular basis by athletes to enhance breathing during the game. About 37 million Americans snore on a regular basis, according to the National Sleep Foundation. Degrading lifestyles and increasing obesity are causing the numbers to rise further. Therefore, the demand for antisnoring devices is expected to witness growth.
