Business consulting means providing solutions/services to the clients (other business firms/organizations/companies) to the problems they face in areas such as strategic planning, business expansion, investment, process optimization, and merger/acquisition, etc. These services are based on assumptions and probability. The explosion of information over the internet has made it easy for consultants to get information quickly and process it. However, developing analytical skills and their application is key to this industry. The market leaders of this industry are PriceWaterhouseCoopers (PWC), Deloitte, Ernst & Young and KPMG. Services provided by these firms are expensive and cannot be availed by medium and small scale businesses. Mid-sized companies cannot afford services of trusted top tier consultants hence they settle with new emerging players or freelancers Hence business consulting services market is expected to grow potentially in long-standing.
