

Masks For Doctors Joins Forces with Non-profit COJECO to Send More PPE to Healthcare Professionals

With thousands of pieces of PPE already sent, the partnership aims to do more with tax-deductible donations

ARLINGTON, MASSACHUSETTS, UNITED STATES, April 16, 2020

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Masks For Doctors, a charity devoted to sending protective gear to underserved healthcare professionals fighting COVID-19 announces its partnership with COJECO.org, a not-for-profit foundation based in the New York tri-state area that serves the Russian-Speaking Jewish Community. Besides years of experience in fundraising, COJECO brings its 501(c)(3) status to the alliance, allowing donations over $200 to be tax-deductible.

The founder of the Masks For Doctors project, Dmitriy Peregudov, said, "Now that the donations are tax deductible we hope this newly formed partnership with COJECO.org will make larger business donors take notice, including companies willing to match donations. We're getting substantial requests for PPE every day, and with more regions reaching their peak and more health care professionals getting sick and dying every day, we need donations now more than ever."

Sharing updates and inviting people to follow is just as important as donations. Since all our funding is going directly to purchasing PPE, we are counting on people sharing our efforts to grow.”

Masks For Doctors Delivers PPE to HCWs who need it most

Since April 2, 2020, when MasksForDoctors.org was initially launched, the organization has received more than $55,000 in donations. Thanks to these generous donors, Masks For Doctors has delivered thousands of pieces of PPE to more than 200 medical facilities and 534 medical professionals in New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, and Washington D.C.. Some donations have been as small as 5-6 masks to people who care for the elderly or prepare pharmacy prescriptions. Other shipments have contained hundreds of masks and dozens of coveralls. The project's goal remains to provide PPE for those on the front lines of health care so they can protect themselves between all work and home related uses.

Masks For Doctors and COJECO.org are sharing updates about the organization daily on their social media channels. Volunteer NinaCarmen Monroe notes, "Sharing updates and inviting people to follow our pages is just as important as donations right now. Since all of our funding is going directly to purchasing and shipping PPE, we are counting on people sharing our efforts to grow our network."
