

Helping Protect the Health of Emergency Workers

How a Scientologist is channeling her creativity into helping emergency workers in Nashville

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, UNITED STATES, April 16, 2020

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Last week, a Nashville Scientologist, "safer at home" like the rest of the country, asked a question on her Instagram: "What did you do for your country today?"

She went on to explain: "Cloth masks go a long way in preventing the spread of COVID19 so I've turned my home into a tiny cloth mask factory so we can make as many as we can. You can buy one in my Etsy shop and for each one sold, we make one to donate."

The following day she posted a picture featuring two of her donated masks.....on the faces of emergency workers.

"Seeing these donated masks out in the field makes my heart sooo incredibly happy," she wrote. "Thank you to these workers at the Salvation Army for the amazing and brave work they do."

Masks are a cornerstone of prevention and prevention is important. The Church of Scientology How to Stay Well Prevention Resource Center was created to prevent the spread of illness and help people keep themselves and others well.
