Families and individuals can drive the 1 mile loop around West Jordan's Veteran's Memorial Park and see the flags of 180 countries, all 50 states, plus flags honoring all first responders and healthcare professionals who have given so much worldwide to comfort and heal those affected by the coronavirus. The flags will be placed 6 feet from the road to symbolize the CDC social distancing guidelines.

“The display is designed to allow visitors to drive through and see all the worlds flags , at no charge, in the hopes of giving our community a beautiful and healing experience which is much needed after being stuck at home for this event to bring attention to their work and encouraging donations to their organization.” (Paul Swenson - Colonial Flag Foundation)

“I am delighted that the Colonial Flag Foundation is shining a light on this time of adversity that the COVID-19 pandemic has forced,” said West Jordan Mayor Dirk Burton. “We’re happy to provide them a space that allows them to go above and beyond, bringing light and hope to our community, at a time where people need it the most.”

“The economic fallout from the Coronavirus will be felt for months to come, especially for the 374,000 Utahns who face hunger. We have seen the numbers of people in need of food assistance increase exponentially since this began. Support from our community will ensure that we can continue to fight hunger statewide as more and more Utahns turn to us in need.” (Ginette Bott, Utah Food Bank President & CEO.)
