industry.

Ms. Adams will remain a vested stakeholder in C. E. Hutton, LLC but will not participate in the daily operations of the company. She will focus her attention on her passions, namely re-educating the communities most effected by the War on Drugs through her public speaking; on teaching in The GreenStreet Academy, and on advocating for Women Empowerment of Women in Business through her new platform, "Girl Get That Money".

"I have enjoyed my journey and have learned a lot from my partners at C.E. Hutton but feel that our journey together has taken its course. It's time for a more experienced team to come in to help take them to the next level. I will remain a stakeholder in C.E. Hutton, however I will not actively be involved in the daily operations of the company. I am committed to focusing on my passion and wish them continued success in their journey." - Khadijah Adams

Ms. Adams has coached women in business since 1999 and she plans to work with them on a sliding scale in order to accommodate all budget sizes. She believes that no "She-Ro" will be left behind. Ms. Adams' Mission is to Empower Women by starting where they are in their process in business and in life, then help them design and execute a plan of action that will take their business and personal life to the next level in their journey.
