In addition, many of our partner companies are making available great resources also free of charge during this time period. Partner resources include:

SMi Source: a mobile-enabled, continuously updated and expanding multimedia education library that provides Google-type searchability with YouTube-like presentation of 16,000+ microlearning topics and 400+ full courses covering a vast category of science, disease, and therapeutic areas. It serves as the backbone for foundational and continuous training in many global clinical and global Medical Affairs organizations across the world.

PwC: Maybe you've been exploring a new at-home fitness routine. But are you digitally fit? Find the answer and so much more via PwC's Digital Fitness tool. In addition to emerging digital trends and technologies content, the app includes relevant health and business insights, including implications for the workforce, and many more features.

Amplify Health: Are you looking to improve your remote engagement skills? These top tips from our partners at Amplify Health will help you plan for, deliver and follow up on engaging and impactful remote 1:1 and group meetings with internal and external stakeholders.

Kernel: What is a medical insight? And how can you create actionable insights reports for stakeholders? Kernel has provided resources to help you explore these questions, including a reference guide to help MSLs and managers define medical insights, identify insights, write actionable and effective insights, and more.

You may access all of these partner resources, as well as MAPS resources, by signing up for your free membership today. CLICK HERE to get started. There is no obligation to continue your membership after the trial period expires on June 30, 2020.

MAPS CAREER CENTER:

Companies may post an unlimited number of jobs, for free, through May 8 as we assist companies seeking to fulfill open positions, and connect candidates seeking new career opportunities. A weekly Careers newsletter is distributed to our membership and full distribution list with open positions. Once posted, jobs will be listed for 30 consecutive days for free (e.g. if you post on May 1, your listing will expire, unless renewed, on June 1). Post or View Jobs for free - Visit the MAPS Career Center today.

About MAPS
