Growing Chronic Cough Conditions and a Surge in the Number of Smokers Globally Promote the Demand

The rising prevalence of chronic respiratory diseases worldwide contributes to the growth of the cough hypersensitivity syndrome treatment market. Among all chronic respiratory diseases, COPD affects more than 200 million people in the world and 65 million of them have moderate or severe airway disease. Moreover, the growing chronic cough conditions and a surge in the number of smokers globally promote the demand of the market.

Cigarettes are smoked by over 1 billion people worldwide which is around 20% of the world's population in 2014. Smoking rates are declining in developed nations. But still, smoking is a concern for respiration related diseases.

Growing Prevalence of Chronic Cough Associated with Gastroesophageal Reflux Disease Stimulates the Growth

In addition, the growing prevalence of chronic cough associated with Gastroesophageal Reflux Disease stimulates the growth of the cough hypersensitivity syndrome treatment market. As per the World Gastroenterology Organization, the prevalence rate of Gastroesophageal Reflux

Disease is rising rapidly across the world.

On the other side, limited efficacy and undesirable side effects of antitussives hamper the growth of the market. Moreover, the surge in research and development activities in the treatment of cough hypersensitivity syndrome creates numerous opportunities for the growth of the cough hypersensitivity syndrome treatment market.

North America is Anticipated to Hold a Premium Share

North America is anticipated to hold a premium share in the global cough hypersensitivity syndrome treatment market. The prevalence of chronic respiratory diseases in North America drives the growth of the market in this region. Asia-Pacific region is expected to grow in the global cough hypersensitivity syndrome treatment market owing to the growing pollution levels and an increasing number of patients with unexplained chronic cough.

As per the World Health Organization, air pollution levels in the Asia-Pacific region is dangerously high. There are around 2.2 million air pollution-related deaths in the region in 2016 and 22% of them are due to chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD). Furthermore, the rising respiratory disorders are leading the growth of the market in Europe. In 2016, the EU has 82.7 deaths per 100000 inhabitants due to respiratory diseases.
