

Allentown Charter School Recognizing Teachers and Seniors

Executive Education Academy Charter School is recognizing teachers and seniors with yard signs during the COVID-19 shutdown.

ALLENTOWN, PA, UNITED STATES, May 18, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Despite the closure of schools across Pennsylvania for the remainder of the academic year, Executive Education Academy Charter School in Allentown is taking time to recognize teachers and graduating seniors. The school is distributing yard signs that the school community can proudly display.

Executive Education Charter School in Allentown is honoring teachers and seniors

Yard signs were distributed for teachers at the Allentown Charter School as part of Teacher Appreciation Week. The school's teachers have been keeping their students engaged with remote lessons and online activities.

We want our seniors to know that we're thinking about them during this difficult time.”

Robert Lysek, Founder & CEO

“Our teachers are working harder than ever to make sure no student gets left behind,” says Robert Lysek, founder and CEO of EEACS.

Yard signs are also being distributed to graduating seniors. The Class of 2020 marks the Lehigh Valley charter school's second graduating class.

“We want our seniors to know that we're thinking about them during this difficult time,” adds Lysek. “Their hard work will be celebrated.”
