Hawaii timeshare deeds are recorded with the Bureau of Conveyances. It is the Bureau’s job to keep an accurate record of real property ownership in the State of Hawaii. The Bureau now allows for electronic recording of deeds. This has reduced the time to record from one year to one day.

After the deed has been recorded, a copy of the recorded deed must be provided to the timeshare company to update its records. The timeshare company will have its own paperwork to complete and its own charge to change their ownership records.
