Automotive Market 2020

Summary: -□

The automotive industry includes companies and organizations involved in the design, development, and manufacturing of automobiles. The vehicles are broadly classified into passenger car and commercial vehicles, with passenger cars covering sport utility vehicles, sedan, coupe, hatchback cars, and commercial vehicle includes light trucks, buses, and large transport trucks. However, the automotive industry does not include the entities dedicated to the maintenance of automobiles, such as delivery to the end-user, repair shops and motor fuel filling stations.

Urbanization and the increasing per capita income and the rise in demand for vehicles in tier 2 and tier 3 cities are the major factors driving the demand for automobiles, all over the world. Furthermore, the rising standard of living, availability of credit system, and the proliferating component aftermarket are expected to drive the automotive industry further.
