GLASGOW, SCOTLAND, UNITED KINGDOM, May 18, 2020

/EINPresswire.com/ -- An award-winning writer and filmmaker duo have swapped TV drama for a weekly supermarket sweep, volunteering their time to get food and essential items to people in their local community.

With production on projects temporarily on hold, writer/producer MICHELLE MARTIN and producer/director FRANK McGOWAN - who co-own BAFTA celebrated media production company BAD PONY MEDIA, have teamed up with their local MORRISONS in BISHOPBRIGGS to form a 'task force' - delivering food and essential items to families and individuals who are self isolating. They also deliver weekly to local care-homes, nurseries and palliative care residencies - including Marie Curie Cancer Care.

We can't thank Morrison's enough for helping with this. They've loaned us their van, meaning we don't need to use the car. We're getting food to people every week in and around Glasgow.”

The endeavor started when Michelle, who is also a published author, decided to put a few bags together for people on her street.

She said: “the project grew from just a few bags, to a truck load every week!”

McGowan, said: “We can't thank Morrison's enough for helping with this. They've loaned us their van, meaning we don't need to use the car - and are now donating food every week, which we're getting out to people in and around Glasgow."

LORRAINE MACK, COMMUNITY CHAMPION for MORRISONS in BISHOPBRIGGS, who has been coordinating the project from home, said: "Michelle and Frank are doing a great job, and Morrison's are happy to help."

McGowan added: "Morrison's also offer a home delivery service, which is just fantastic. It's available for anyone who needs it by phone."
