AUSTIN, TEXAS, USA, May 27, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Prior to the COVID-19 pandemic, virtual healthcare solutions had yet to see mainstream adoption in healthcare. This was certainly attributed to reimbursement models and/or lack of clarity when it came to reimbursements. Clearly, the time for virtual health technology has now arrived. Beyond simply concierge medicine or a telemedicine provider network, TimiCare's Virtual Healthcare Platform helps address safety concerns for staff, patients and providers.

WHY IT MATTERS

Helping to reshape the relationship between the critical needs of patients and those on the frontlines of healthcare. TimiHealth, from day one, has focused on portability of health information. Today, COVID-19 has reinforced Timi's vision. Health information portability further stresses an already stressed healthcare system.

FINDING A BALANCE

TimiHealth's blockchain technology offers a better balance. Understanding the global wake up call that has impacted the healthcare system. With that being said, we fully realize that virtual health technology like TimiCare could provide great flexibility across healthcare globally.

“TimiCare's virtual healthcare solution acts as a truly secure, scalable, and interoperable mobile friendly technology. Empowering patients with secure control of their health information. Freedom to have access to healthcare providers via a virtual healthcare application. Our development teams' prior work in the Telehealth space allowed us to move at lightning speed. “ said Will Lowe, Co-Founder of TimiHealth.

Further, Lowe states, "TimiCare should be available for providers in late June 2020, followed by consumer sign up shortly after. "
