DURHAM, NC, UNITED STATES, May 29, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- “Inimicus” by HarLau Productions

Drama has completed casting and is set to begin filming by early 2021

For Immediate Release:

As announced by HarLau Productions, the debut production from producer/director Paula Lauzon titled “Inimicus” has completed its casting search and will begin filming in late 2020/early 2021. Jeff Briggs, together with Katherine McHargue, are the lead actors of the film, which centers around a former soldier struggling from the effects of Post-traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD).

Briggs, a native North Carolinian, began his acting career in 2005. To date, he has appeared in over forty film projects with several others currently in post-production. McHargue, who hails from Virginia, began her acting career in 2010 and has worked in front as well as behind the camera on several TV shows. Both are represented by Beverly J. Brock, The Brock Agency, Inc., North Carolina.

“Inimicus” also stars David Afflick, Lee Darnell, and Lawrence Gilligan. Anthony Varon will be producing the film while Lauzon will be directing.

The story follows Clyde Duncan, a former soldier who struggles to reintegrate into normal life after several tours of military duty. Despite his best efforts, Clyde's inner demons take center stage as his wife and friends try desperately to keep his PTSD from consuming his life.

“The artistic mission of this film is to try to inspire viewers that there is more to be gained from life by not giving up hope,” said Lauzon. “We want to create something pleasing to audiences but we also hope it inspires them to get involved any way they can to help people with this terrible disease.”

“Inimicus” shines a light on the very real trauma that so many returning from the battlefield face on a daily basis. As of this writing, PTSD affects approximately 3.5 percent of U.S. adults, and an estimated one in 11 people will be diagnosed with PTSD in their lifetime.
