

Participants Enrolled from Over 50 Countries for L. Ron Hubbard's Writers of the Future Online Workshop

Free online workshop draws aspiring writers from over 50 countries with the United Kingdom having the second most sign-ups in the world.

LOS ANGELES, CA, USA, June 4, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- L. Ron Hubbard's Writers of the Future Online Workshop was launched as a free online course for aspiring writers with participants now over 2,500 from over 50 countries. The United Kingdom has the second most sign-ups in the world.

The workshop is comprised of 13 videos by New York Times bestselling authors Orson Scott Card, David Farland, and Tim Powers. It also has essays and practical assignments that take a writer through research and ideas to a completed short story.

We have winning authors coming from the UK almost every year. So it makes sense as there is a lot of talent there.”

*John Goodwin, President
Galaxy Press*

“An impressive 72% of those taking the workshop have a story completed by the end of the course, which is one of the things we hear plaguing authors—being able to complete stories!” said John Goodwin President Galaxy Press. “Next to the US where the Writers of the Future is based, the online workshop has more participants from the United Kingdom than anywhere else in the world. We have winning authors coming from the UK almost every year. So it makes sense as there is a lot of talent there.”

The reviews show that authors are not only completing short stories but have reported taking their writing to a new level following the workshop:

“The simple, clear, and straightforward ideas presented in the WOTF online course helped me tremendously to streamline my prose and focus my stories. I have felt that my writing was on the brink of where I wanted it to be.

Now I believe it is there.” —J.S.

“I have attended a lot of writing workshops on my journey towards striving to become a better writer but the Writer's of the Future Online Workshop did a better job of elevating and upgrading my knowledge of the writing craft.” —M.H.

“The workshop offers priceless nuggets from experts in the field that when adhered to can transform your writing career.” —J.A.O.

The Writers of the Future writing contest was initiated by L. Ron Hubbard in 1983 to provide “a means for new and budding writers to have a chance for their creative efforts to be seen and acknowledged.” Based on its success, its sister contest, Illustrators of the Future was created five years later to provide that same opportunity for the aspiring artist.

Throughout the Contests’ 36-year history, 786 writers and illustrators have been recognized as winners.

The intensive mentoring process has proven very successful. The 428 past winners of the Writing Contest have published 1,150 novels and nearly 4,500 short stories. They have produced 33 New York Times bestsellers and their works have sold over 60 million copies.

The 358 past winners of the Illustrating Contest have produced over 6,000 illustrations, 360 comic books, graced 624 books, and albums with their art and visually contributed to 68 TV shows and 40 major movies.
