On a recent podcast episode, Justin Gimelstob talked about sports, his transition into the business world, and more.

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, UNITED STATES, June 8, 2020

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Justin Gimelstob was recently featured in an exclusive interview with the Industry Elites podcast. The interview covered a wide range of topics including his rise in tennis to transitioning into all facets of the business world. Justin Gimelstob played professional tennis for more than a decade, retiring in 2007 then seamlessly transitioned into a career in broadcasting and business. Recently, he was named president of FBR Group; one of the foremost, privately owned, full-service insurance companies in the country.

In our interview, Justin Gimelstob also touched on the unprecedented situation the world is facing with the COVID-19 pandemic. "I'm an optimist. I'm a believer that chaos can create opportunities, you just have to work harder to find them. If you look at the history of the world, some of the most significant catastrophes and challenges have acted as catalyst for innovation," Justin Gimelstob said.

Mr. Gimelstob also talked with us about his philanthropic work with both The Justin Gimelstob Children's Fund and the first annual Justin Gimelstob Scholarship Program. This scholarship was created in memory of his father, Barry Gimelstob, with the goal of helping student athletes that are struggling financially. "I believe giving back if you have a platform is your responsibility," said Justin Gimelstob.
